Location

Peaceful and quiet, the villa is situated close to the pretty village of Ketewel on Bali's south-east coast. The streets of the village are lined with leafy trees; a small intersection is the venue of a fruit and vegetable market, and colourful temple ceremonies are a common sight.

Things to do

- At the international Bali Kite Festival held every July at Padang Galak Beach (just north of Sanur) a dazzling display of enormous colourful kites are flown competitively by teams from villages all around Bali.
- If you wish to dine out, there is a choice of restaurants in Sanur, but our advice is to head up to Ubud (about 20km) where you'll find a much wider selection.
- Le Mayeur Museum in Sanur (former home of Belgian artist Adrian Jean Le Mayeur) showcases the artist's work and gives visitors an insight into what it must have been like to be one of Bali's very first expats.
- Surfing is good along the coast between Sanur and Ketewel - especially between November and May when the winds turn off-shore.
- For a quick round of golf without having to travel to Tanah Lot or Nusa Dua, try the 9-hole course at the Bali Beach Hotel in Sanur.
- Go horse riding along the black sandy beach at Saba Bay (suitable for beginners).
- Sanur is a good place to learn or brush up on your scuba diving skills.
